soc. Flourney, Stringfellow, and the Candidate Himself.

The Buford meeting at the Richmond Theatre last night was a big success. Fully 500 persons were in attendance and a great deal of outhusiasm was evidenced. Colonel Buford himself occupied a promi-nent seat upon the stage. He was sur-rounded by a host of friends and admirers who are anxious to see him the next Governor of Virginia, and among whom were Colonel W. E. Cutshaw, Judge H. H. were Colonel W. E. The Metriko OFEND.

The meeting was rapped to order by Morion. The meeting of the meeting of the meeting when the morion of the importance of the convention of the patriotic administration of her Covernment, which will redound to her honor, prosperity, and dignity, and promote her advancement among the sisterhood of States and her moral and material welfare at home."

FRIENDS FOR THEATY-FUX YEARS.

In submitting the above Judge Flournoy said that he believed he had known and called Colonel A. S. Buford his friend for hearly thirty-five years. He was a triend of his father. When a mere youth Colonel Enford, by reason of his pecuniary condition, before he had commenced the work in the spelling-book, was called to the handles of the plow, and it was known that he in those times put a little slot in the handles of the plow and studied his sweller while the plow turned the soil. He owed no man a penny for the splendid education he got from the colleges of Virginia. The speaker referred to Cofonel Buford's course in the Legislature of Virginia when but twenty-four years of age, and asserted that the pseule who knew of his course then were the ones who wanted to put him at the head of this Commonwealth new. [Applause.]

H. H. Reynolds, I. W. Schoelder, and Richard Wagner Fail.

The board thereupon elected Rev. T. P. Beil, D. D., until recently Dr. Tupper's assistant, to succeed him as corresponding secretary. Dr. Beil has been a resident of Richard Wagner Fail.

Three deeds of assignment were admitted to record in the office of the Chancery that Colonel Buford is private in the Contederate army Judge Flournoy spoke in very complimentary terms of the Richard and Danville rail read and of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical Society. Continuing, the speaker said that he had been charged.

oen to the Richmond and Dauville railread and of the Virginia Agricultural and Mechanical Society. Continuing, the speaker said that he had been charged with the representation that Virginia should have at the World's Fair, and so well had he performed that charge that every citizen of this Commonwealth would go to Chicago with pride.

The speaker felt as confident as he was that he was standing upon that stage that it every one in the State performed his duty in accordance with his own thoughts, Colonel A. S. Baford would be the nominee of the convention to convene kere August 17th. The speaker explained why Colonel Buford was late coming out, said he had been urged for a year to become a candidate, and said Colonel Buford was out in accordance with the wishes of the best people of Virginia, who have the best interests of the State at heart. [Great applause.]

interests of the State at heart. [Great applause.]
Judge Flournoy referred in glowing terms to Colonel Buferd's qualifications for the position of Chief Executive of the Commonwealth, and said that his conduct of the affairs of the Richmond and Danville Railroad Company and his career as a citizen of Richmond and of Virginia would specially commend him for the place, and closed by saying that the letters which he had seen and which had been written to Colonel Buford and to himself would, if they had been indicted about himself, thrill him with pride even if he did not get the nomination, Judge Flournoy was loudly applauded and at his closing there were loud calls for Major Charles S. Stringfellow.

Major STRINGFELLOW SPZAES.

Major Stringfellow could not date his first acquaintance with Colonel Buford as far back as Judge Flournoy had, because he came along with the young (?) Democracy. [Much laughter,] He explained the significance of an endorsement to a note and said that he wanted there and then to give his endorsement of the name of A. S. Buford for Governor of Virginia, Illustrating the needs of the Virginia gubernatorial chair, Major Stringfellow stated that we did not want a figure-head—we wanted a man of MAJOR STRINGFELLOW SPEARS, practical sense, of integrity, of personal character. "We want a politician? Yes, weil. Colonel Buford is a politician. We do not need simply a man who can get up and say something about our forefathers. Why, we have lived on them now until they have run dry." [Applause.] The speaker then branched of upon the differences between the country and the city and said that in Colonel Buford we had both the farmer and the city man who is able to guide the affairs of all the people.

Speaking of the candidates he said he did not like the opponents of Colonel Buford more. He had no doubt that one of them would make a good Governor, or that another would make a better Governor, but he honestly believed that Colonel A. S. Buford would make the best Governor. [Applause.]

At this point Judge Flournoy's resolu-At this point Judge Flournoy's resolu-tion was unanimously adopted. The Judge stated that at the earnest solicita-tion of many of his friends Colenel Buford himself had consented to be present and would probably make a few remarks. With this there was an outburst of applause from the audience which did not subside until the distinguished can-didate began to speak.

not subside until the distinguished candidate began to speak.

COLONEL BUFORD'S ADDRESS.

After thanking those assembled for the honor conferred upon him he said that rather an unexpected concurrence of circumstances had brought him before them last night. He wanted to do himself the justice to say that what he would say would be accepted as coming from him without a moment's preparation. He had endeavored in an humble way for many years to discharge his full duties. These pursuits very largely affected the public. He had now come for some reward for which he had never labored. What he had done he had done in accordance with his honest convictions. He was grateful for even the partial reward that was given him last night. If he had anything to commend him it was his directness, his honesty. Having been considered by his fellow-citzens not unworthy to fill the high and honorable position of Governor, he could not longer refrain from taking the stand that he bad. He was not before the people uninvited. "They say I came out too late," said Colonel Buford. "Is it ever too late," said Colonel Buford. "Is it ever too late," said Colonel Buford. "Is it ever too late," another candidate because I came out too late let him do it."

He stated that he had looked carefully into the wisdom of his candidacy and hoped even for his audience that he had not done a wrong thing in coming before his people, but beyond all things he hoped he had not done a foolish thing. [Appleates.]

MR. CHRISTIAN PRESIDENT.

MR. CHRISTIAN PRESIDENT.

The Secretary of the Commonwealth then spoke of a plan proposed whereby a general committee of five to seven from each ward should be appointed to ascertain the strength of Colonel Buford in the city. He nominated Mr. Andrew Christian as president and Mr. W. L. White as secretary. These gentlemen were unanimously elected and the following was adopted:

Researed. That an enrolment of the supporters of Colonel Buford be effected as soon and in such manner as shall be arranged by the president and secretary, and the persons so enrolled shall constitute a general committee of this organization, with such assignment of persons in the different wards and precincts as shall be deemed best for prompt and effective work in benalf of the candidate of our choice.

It was rumored in Nashville while the convention was in session and published in some of the denominational papers that the committee relerted to asked the secretaries of both of the mission boards to hand in their resignations. There was, however, no allusion to this particular matter on the floor of the convention.

Dr. Theore is now at Afon, where he has Dr. Tupper is now at Afron, where he has been for several days.

Fire Commissioners.

Captain John Frischkorn and his collaborers around the table of the Board of Fire Commissioners transacted a great deal of business at their regular monthly session last night. It was decided that in view of the volume of work before the board at every meeting now it should convene hereafter twice a month, on the nights of the 18th and 27th.

A. S. Duke, A. S. Dunkley, and A. B. Hubbard were made substitutes in Engine Companies 2 and 3 and Truck Company 3, respectively.

Applications for fire-alarm boxes at the corners of Twenty-second and Marshall streets and Washington and Cary streets were favorably considered.

The roofs of the departmental houses were ordered to be repainted and new tapper-gongs were ordered to be placed in the engine-houses.

For meritorious conduct in rescuing the life of Mrs. Martin on the morning of the Ullman fire the names of Assistant-Chief Shaw and Ladderman J. V. Haake were placed on the roil of merit.

The Council will be asked to transer $1,500 from the Fire-Department account to that of the Water Department for the purpose of changing outlets to fire-plugs from 1% to the standard 2% inches.

The bells of the department were directed to be tolled from 12 to 6 o'clock tomorrow afternoon in honor of the Jefferson Davis reinterment.

Arrest of Ex-Treasurer Lamb

Mr. James O'Conpell, the grand-master machinist of the International Association of Machinista, yesterday received a telegram from Scranton, Pa., announcing the arrest in that city of John J. Lamb, a former treasurer of the organization, who is charged with having left Indianapolis May 9th with $5,600 of the association's fund.

When the association met in Indianapolis in the early part of the month they decided to combine the office of grand treasurer and secretary in one, and the effect of the consolidation was to deprive Lamb of his position.

mittee was appointed to inform Dr. Bed of this election, and it is hoped that he can be induced to accept, though this is entirely uncertain.

WHY HE WOULD NOT SERVE.

Dr. Tupper's refusal to serve longer in the position which he had hiled so long and so well is believed to be due to certain elements of dissatisfaction which cropped out in the proceedings of the convention recently held in Nashfulle. There had been prior to the assembling of that body considerable discussion as to the expediency of retaining the assistant secretaries and the Committee on "Mission Methods" reported a resolution positively doing away with these officials in nuture. Tois resolution was defeated and another adopted leaving the subject entirely in the hands of the boards. It was also resolved that the election of salaried officers be left to the boards. This was an entirely new departure, the convention having heretofore made the selections itself.

It was rumored in Nashville while the convention was in session and published in some of the denominational papers that

The members of Phil, Kearny Post, G. A. The programme consisted of singing of hymns by a select choir of six voices, accompanied by piano and clarionet; scriptural reading and prayer by Rev. Dr. C. H. Corey; reading of the military record of the dead by the adjutant of the post, B. C. Cook; memorial address by Dr. Corey; doxology and benediction. The services as a whole were very interesting.
